Subject and Course Code:	GEED 006 - Art Appreciation

This set of activities is to fulfill the missing gaps of our onsite activities. Do not worry, you will not engage with lengthy essays but rather we have to engage with our creative minds and work it out with these simple art online activities.

- Part 1: Art Meme (30 points)
Grade:
- Part 2: Creative Board (50 points)
Grade:
- Part 3: Art Critique (20 points)
Grade:

Total: 100 points.

PT. 1, ART MEME

Direction: Pick (1) one painting or artwork and think what could be the funniest, wittiest, or even quirkiest meme idea you would think of. You can edit the picture, put out dialog or text bubbles or use any creative approach to express your meme.

You may also incorporate other meme-able images, you can make it into the themes of dark humor, satirical, and irony. Kindly paste your meme here in this document. This section is worth 30 points.

Here's the list of paintings, as for your reference:

- The Scream by Edvard Munch
- The Creation of Adam by Michelangelo
- Youth Making a Face, Adriaen Brouwer
- Little Girl in a Blue Armchair by Mary Cassatt
- Pawel Kuczynski

PT. 2, my creative board

Direction: This online junk journal digital board aims to express your personal aesthetic, ideas, inspirations visually. Your task is to create a digital mood board a la junk journal that reflects your aesthetic vision.

Further Instructions:

- Decide or conceptualize what could be your personal theme. You can try your fashion aesthetic, travel experiences, the art of gaming/online games, your 2026 goals, life as an Iska at PUP, your fave restaurant, your happy moments, and etc.,
- Think of your creative board as your online “junk” visual journal. It should tell a story, motivations, color palettes, and TEXT.
- You can browse photos from Pinterest, Instagram, Google Images, or IN YOUR OWN PHOTO GALLERY. You may also include screenshots, magazines, cutouts, stickers, or any other visual elements that fit your theme.
- For the layouts, arrange your board in your creative ambition as much as possible. Check out these possible examples:

24	Kim Jin Boo	This short video carries profound weight. Its message resonates with me deeply which is to pursue your passions even when the world disagrees. Don't abandon your dreams because of others' beliefs or the majority's opinion. Stay committed to what you love. I even see this reflected in society where conformity often overshadows individuality. For example, people choosing modern over vintage simply to fit in. The video celebrates those courageous enough to stay true to themselves despite external pressures. It reminds us that authenticity and persistence in our convictions matter far more than following the crowd. Truly admirable and inspiring.
